

#IHMayDay16

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are invited to participate in #IHMayDay16 by:

- Sharing the names of your country and connections
- Sharing your thoughts, stories and photos on Twitter – particularly about what matters for the health and wellbeing of young people
- Sharing the news about your work for better health and wellbeing
- RT-ing tweets that are marked #IHMayDay16
- Pledging to fill your timeline with #IHMayDay16 – and to share the news about the event with your networks
- Signing the pledge for Indigenous health equality:
<http://croakey.org/sign-this-pledge-for-health-equality-for-aboriginal-and-torres-strait-islander-people/>
- Encouraging politicians to listen to #IHMayDay16 and to participate
- Engaging with and supporting @IndigenousX

The 3rd annual Indigenous Health May Day Twitter festival will be held on Thursday, May 12. It is moderated by the founder of #IHMayDay, Dr Lynore Geia from James Cook University, and by Assoc Prof Bronwyn Carlson of the University of Wollongong, and Croakey contributor Summer May Finlay. It is co-hosted by the University of Wollongong and Croakey.org, and held in association with @IndigenousX and @WePublicHealth.